The Rt. Rev.

WM. H. HARE, D. D., S. T. D., BISHOP OF SOUTH DAKOTA,

All Saints' School, Sioux Falls, S. D.,

Dear Bishop:—

The committee appointed by you to examine, revise, and prepare for publication the Dakota Church Hymnal, with Tunes, Chants, etc., arranged by Mrs. Jessie W. Cook in fulfillment of a long-cherished purpose of her late husband, the Rev. Chas. S. Cook, have, we trust under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, completed their work.

On this first anniversary of our lamented brother's death, we herewith offer to you the manuscript copy for your examination, should you so desire; and, if approved, hope to receive your authorization of its publication.

Your obedient servants in Christ,

WM. J. CLEVELAND,
JOS. W. COOK,
EDW. ASHLEY,
Committee.

Good Friday, 1893.

To
WM. J. CLEVELAND,
JOS. W. COOK,
EDWARD ASHLEY.

My Dear Brethren:

The comfort and help which the Dakotas find in the hymns and music of the Church are so great and their enjoyment of them is so rich that I welcome the announcement of the completion of your work, and rejoice that it coincides with the anniversary of the death of the beloved brother who sympathized so keenly with his people in their need and in their love of sacred music.

The publication of the Tune Book is hereby authorized, with grateful acknowledgement of your labors.

Your faithful brother,

WM. H. HARE,
Missionary Bishop of S. D.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

Those who have prepared this work for publication desire to acknowledge very gratefully their obligations to the authors and owners of the tunes herein contained. With but one exception, cheerful consent has been given by all whose ownership could be traced, to the free use of their music in this mission hymn book for the Dakotas.

THE DAKOTA ALPHABET.

A little attention to the following explanation of the sounds of the characters used in printing the Dakota language will enable almost anyone to pronounce it with fair accuracy.

Persons who have no knowledge of the meaning of the words can thus, with a little care and practice, soon learn to sing the hymns and chants contained in this book, so that they would be intelligible to the native Sioux or Dakota Indians.

VOWELS.

The vowels, five in number, have what are commonly called the long Continental sounds. There are, properly, no "Short" vowel sounds, but each has one unvarying "Long" sound.

a (ah) the same sound as a in Father.

e (aye) the same as a in place.

i (ee) the same as ee in see, or ea in sea.

o (oh) the same as o in no.

u (oo) the same as o in lose, or oo in smooth.

CONSONANTS.

b (bee) the same as in English.

c (chee) the same as ch in chain.

ç (ch'ee) ch explosive. Formed by pronouncing ch with a strong pressure of the tongue against the roof of the mouth, followed by a sudden expulsion of the breath.

d (dee) the same as in English.

g (ghee) the same as g hard in English, as in get.

CONSONANTS.

ġ (ġhee) a rough guttural, formed by pronouncing g hard with a strong pressure of the organs in the back part of the mouth.

h (hee) the same as h in English.

ħ (ħee) a rough guttural, formed by pronouncing h with a strong pressure of the organs in the back part of the mouth.

j (zhee) the same as z in azure, or s in pleasure.

k (kee) the same as in English.

m (mee) the same as in English.

n (nee) the same as in English. The abrupt, or closed, nasal.

ŋ (iŋ) the same as n in think, or the French n in bon. The open, or unclosed, nasal.

(pee) the same as in English.

p̣ (p'ee) p explosive. Formed by pronouncing p with a strong pressure of the lips, followed by a sudden expulsion of the breath.

q (k'ee) k explosive. Formed by pronouncing k with a strong pressure of the organs, followed by a sudden expulsion of the breath.

s (see) the same as in English, or c soft in peace.

ṡ (shee) the same as sh in show.

t (tee) the same as in English.

ṭ (t'ee) t explosive. Formed by pronouncing t with a strong pressure of the tongue against the roof of the mouth, followed by a sudden expulsion of the breath.

w (wee) the same as w in will.

y (yee) the same as y in you.

z (zee) the same as z in zebra.

The apostrophe indicates an hiatus, as in s'a.
